Discuss Mascot Naming

The committee plans to reopen suggestions for a school mascot now that the school's name is official, then narrow the ideas to three options for students and staff to vote on. Voting may use clear ballot boxes for younger students and a Google Form for others, with the goal of making the process transparent and inclusive. Separately, Dr. Leggett is working with a community knitting group that is exploring making acorn hats for next year's kindergarten class.

Discuss Naming of Common Areas

The committee discussed assigning the gym, cafetorium, and library to honor Lyman, Brewster, and Korn, but wants to learn more about each person's history before deciding which name fits each space or whether to seek community input. Committee members also revisited having high school students develop mascot designs after the mascot is chosen, with younger students voting on the final design. Committee members will check with the art teachers about what's feasible.

Before moving to Public Comment, the committee summarized next steps: send a survey for mascot suggestions, meet again in a few weeks to narrow the options, and then hold a school-wide vote. The committee will also develop a question about naming the common areas and revisit it at the next meeting.
